GLYCERA REDIVIVA!

Horace: Book I, Ode 19.
"Mater matris Cupidum."

Venus, the cruel mother of
The Cupids (symbolizing Love),
Bids me to muse upon and sigh
For things to which I've said "Good by!"

Believe me or believe me not,
I give this Glycera girl a lot:
Pure Parian marble are her arms—
And she has eighty other charms.

Venus has left her Cyprus home
And will not let me pull a pome
About the Parthians, fierce and rough,
The Scythian war, and all that stuff.

Set up, O slaves, a verdant shrine!
Uncork a quart of last year's wine!
Place incense here, and here verbenas,
And watch me while I jolly Venus!

This department used some Hard Words last winter to express its petty displeasure at the weather. If there are any synonyms for them, we should like to have them for use in endorsing the gold-mines of yesterday and Saturday.

All that was beautiful and just,
All that was pure and sad
Went in one little, moving plot of dust
The world called bad.

Came like a highwayman, and went,
One who was bold and gay,
Left when his lightly loving mood was spent
Thy heart to pay.

By-word of little street and men,
Narrower streets the shame,
Tread thou the lava-rolling leaves and then
Turn whence it came.

Atina, all wonderful, whose heart
Glowed as thine throbbing glows,
Almond and citron bloom quivering at start,
Ends in pure snows.

The Goodrich Rubber Factory at Akron is the interesting advertisement says, the largest in the world, "with more than 90 square acres of floor-space." And how many cubic gallons of air?

The cubic gallon, however, is what most of us probably get when we buy gasoline, as opposed to the square, or 4-quart, gallon.

Shoats from the Young Idea.

[A composition by a 10-year-old boy, on "The Horse Chestnut Tree."] The horse chestnut tree is a great shade tree. But it is rather a nuisance because of the blossoms dropping all over the grass, next the little green chestnuts fall all over the ground, next the big horse chestnuts fall with the burrs, next the great large leaves fall and dry up, and it takes time to rake them all up, and they won't burn like other leaves. So if I were planting trees I would plant a maple tree.

Transitive verbs to pinch-hit for "say" are abundant, particularly in the magazines, and in "Every Week" appears "Finally he hoarse out: 'What d'ye mean? What d'ye mean?'" which inspires Bonnie to

The Efficient Poetry of Business.

[From a circular.]

When orders from the Good Roads are received
The factory must not be deceived,
But copy them without an error
To prevent their being in a terror.

Send the orders to the shop without delay,
So we may get them out to-day;
Give each department their copy
So the order goes through without stopping.

Fill the orders on the alert,
Hurry them through to the Shipping Clerk.
The Railroads need it for transportation,
So do not delay the complete information.

The workman who is on the job,
His work is well done, and never stops.
It is true, "The busy bee gets the honey,"
Just so, the good workman gets the money.

Our slogan is to fill the orders without fault,
And more will come without a halt.
So what we do, let's do it well,
What the result will be, we cannot tell.

Make your records with the pencil
And mark all shipments with the stencil.
Write requisitions with an inspiration,
And there will be no irritation.

Let's all work together so we will be in style,
So when we greet each other there will be a smile.
Let us remember to do our part,
And the American Road will have us at heart.

The New Haven Evening Register, like the rest of us, printed the German Note. But the Hynotyper had his own ideas about not following copy and he made the Note speak to "the scared principles of humanity."

BISHOP STARTS CATHEDRAL NAVE

Breaks Ground at St. John the Divine Ceremony.

WHITMAN AND MAYOR AMONG THE SPEAKERS

Impressive Services Mark Milestone in Construction of Great Edifice.

With impressive ceremony, ground was broken yesterday afternoon for the nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, on Morningside Heights. The nave of the cathedral will extend west from the completed transept, whose immense round dome is one of the landmarks of the northern part of the city, to within eighty feet of the curb of Amsterdam Avenue.

Promptly at 4:30 o'clock a long procession of choir boys, singing the processional hymn, followed by Bishop David H. Greer, dignitaries and trustees of the Church and by the Governor and Mayor, filed from the cathedral to the grandstand which had been erected in the field where the nave will stand. More than two thousand persons were seated in the open on three sides of the platform to witness the ceremony and take part in the divine service that followed in the church itself.

In the center of the flag-draped stand were Bishop Greer, Suffragan Bishop Burch, Mayor Mitchell and Governor Whitman, who was attended by eight of his personal staff in uniform. After pronouncing the prayer, Bishop Greer delivered an address on the cathedral's future, which he said:

"We make this new venture today in the hope that it will be the beginning of another great chapter in the history of this cathedral. When the nave is finished, we hope that the cathedral itself will go on to completion. If anything in this city of change is destined to endure, this cathedral will forever stand. I speak with confidence because I believe that the people of this community, having once put their hands to the work, will see that it goes on without fail. What the cathedral we are building will then mean to the people the boldest vision cannot foresee."

Governor and Mayor Speak.

The Bishop of New York then introduced Governor Whitman, who spoke on the significance which a great community church like the Cathedral of St. John the Divine should have for the people. Mayor Mitchell followed the Governor with an address on religious freedom in this country, and the gain that had been accomplished by the separation of Church and State. "This cathedral will stand," he said, "for the highest and most promising element in American civilization."

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia gave a brief history of the rise of the historic churches in Europe in past centuries. "After the passage of all these years," he said, "and after the momentous changes that have so materially altered the face of our continent, we are again on another continent repeating these significant and previously enacted scenes of the past. As the cathedral fabric rises, we shall slowly see rising in its stability the fabric of the vital meaning of the presence of the highest representatives of the state and city on the ground where the immense nave of the cathedral will rise."

Bishop Greer Uses the Spade.

Following President Butler's address, Bishop Greer, with the silver spade made for the purpose, removed the first earth from the ground at a spot that will be in the exact center of the nave of the cathedral, the laying at the same moment: "I break the ground for the nave of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, and may the Lord bring our undertaking to a prosperous end."

Following this ceremony the choir sang the Gloria in Excelsis, the Bishop uttered a brief prayer, and, to the music of the recessional, the procession led back into the cathedral. Among those present were Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, Bishop Courtney, Mrs. Greer and Miss Greer, the Rev. William Wilkinson, "Bishop of the Valley," Justice Arthur J. Rugg, H. L. Hobart, Stephen Baker, F. F. Baylies, Commodore E. F. Bourne, George Zabriske, Haley Fluke, Ralph Gram, the architect, who carried the silver spade, and Lawrence Greer, the Bishop's son.

TO HOLD LUSITANIA MEETING

American Rights Committee Gets Letters Attacking Mayor's Action.

The Lusitania memorial mass meeting, postponed from Sunday evening at the request of Mayor Mitchell, will take place this evening at 8 o'clock at the American Rights Committee at 2 West Forty-fifth Street, yesterday afternoon.

"We will hold the meeting at the earliest possible date," said Everett V. Abbott, chairman of the executive committee, "though we will give due consideration to the wishes of the Mayor." Several letters characterizing Mayor Mitchell's request as "unwarranted interference," which have been sent to the committee, were discussed yesterday.

WEST SIDE PLAN AGAIN OPPOSED

Board of Estimate Told Present Scheme Won't Hide Central Tracks.

The West End Association, through John C. Coleman, its president, and Charles L. Craig, counsel, objected to the proposed improvement and the relocation of the New York Central tracks at the hearing before the Board of Estimate yesterday. The chief complaint was that the proposed plan would mar the beauty of Riverside Park.

Mr. Coleman read a report of Charles Downing Lay, landscape architect, in which it was stated that while the smoke and noise nuisance would be done away with by the electrification of the railroad the plans would not accomplish the object most hoped for of hiding the railroad and leaving the park uninterrupted from the Drive to the bulkhead line.

Object to Terrace.

"The plans provide for a covering of earth over the deck never more than three feet deep," the report stated, which in a width of 100 feet allows for insignificant changes in the surface, so that this park, which is now so varied and so delightful in its sloping lawns and knolls, will have run through it a broad terrace 100 feet wide, practically level and badly fitted to the existing topography.

"This stiff terrace must always be a blemish in such a picturesque park, and it is a matter of grave doubt whether large trees can be grown there."

The report declared that the parking improvement was left for the city to do at some future time and not provided for in the plans. It was suggested that a thorough study should be made by experts before the plan is finally adopted, so as to be sure that the best thing for the park is being done.

Mr. Craig said that the report of the port and terminal committee as published in the newspapers was inaccurate and gave false impressions.

Craig Criticizes Scheme.

"Not an ounce of soil, not a blade of grass, not a single bush or shrub, not a foot of promenade, pathway or steps is provided," said Mr. Craig. "The present Board of Estimate simply says that it leaves it to be done in the future, without the slightest provision for insignificant changes in the surface."

NORTH FRANCE FACES FAMINE

Herbert Hoover Reports Death Rate Rising Under German Rule.

DOG MEAT AND BONES IN ROUBAIX MARKET

Relief Commission Urges Americans to Send Help as Soon as Possible.

The reduction of the daily ration in the part of France now held by the Germans, necessitated by the lack of supplies, threatens a tremendous increase in the death rate among non-combatants, according to reports from Herbert Hoover, chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, received yesterday at the commission's offices, at 120 Broadway.

In the towns of Lille, Valenciennes and Roubaix and the territory surrounding them, a district comprising 1,235 square miles, with a present population of 1,250,000 civilians, no fresh meat had been sold through shops or markets for ten days, with three exceptions, at the time Mr. Hoover made an examination of conditions there. Recently the shops openly sold dog meat, Beef, a small quantity of which reached Roubaix from Holland, sold at a price, for bones and all, equivalent to $1.30 a pound. A little meat has been obtained for the soup kitchens, but in one commune for twelve days out of sixteen there was no meat or grease base whatever for the soup. A single chicken was sold to Mr. Hoover's party in Lille for $2.20.

Potatoes throughout the region are absolutely exhausted. In the Valenciennes market 220 pounds were offered for sale at 85 francs which is equivalent to $1.70 a ton, as against $20 a ton in normal times. An effort has been made to get potatoes from Holland, but with no success.

Milk and butter supplies have not been available for the population show an increase of from twenty to the next forty-two during the first twenty-five days of March.

To save the people of Northern France from starvation substantial help must be given within the next few months. There is no consequential leakage in the supplies sent, as they go under seal to the communal storehouses, and the mayors themselves report their arrival to the American district managers of the commission, who in turn notify the central organization. Every household has a "carte de menage" issued by the committee, which entitles the holder to the purchase or gift of the ration, the amount of which is publicly posted.

In closing his report Mr. Hoover says: "The 'C. R. B.', which for more than a year has been ceaselessly endeavoring to alleviate this mass of misery, is now forced to appear as an instrument of torture since daily we must refuse the pleadings of a people whose sufferings will yet be told in terms reflecting neglect, for which we are now daily blamed."
